

Sacred Heart School Thornlie

From the Heart - 2 September 2021

Principal's Message

Dear Parents

Next week we have our school Athletics Carnival. The Carnival is held over two days (Monday and Tuesday) and detailed information will be sent home regarding the day. We look forward to seeing the children involved in a variety of events and showcasing the skills they have been developing in their Physical Education classes. I thank Mr Braid Bouffler in advance for all his hard work in organising the carnival and preparing students for the events.

CEWA's (Catholic Education Western Australia) Quality Catholic Education Awards season is currently underway. The awards celebrate the great initiatives that are taking place in Catholic Education around our state. This year Sacred Heart decided to enter in several categories. Voting is open for the people's choice award and further details about where and how to vote are available later in this newsletter and on our school's FB page.

Our school's NAPLAN results have arrived and you will soon be receiving your child's report if they are in Year 3 or 5. Remember the results are a snapshot of learning on a particular day and need to be viewed in this way. If you have any queries or concerns about the results do not hesitate to contact me or your child's teacher.

I would like to wish all of the Dads, Grandads and significant adult males in our children's lives a wonderful Father's Day. We hope to see you at our breakfast and Mass on Friday where our P&F raffle will also be drawn. I hope you get spoiled on the weekend and have a great day on Sunday.

Our Parenting Ideas article is about Fatherhood. In light of Father's Day being this weekend it is a great time to read up on the modern perspectives of being a Dad or a Father figure.

This term we are focusing closely on our core school value of Responsibility. Please discuss this with your children at home when opportunities arise.

God Bless

Parenting Ideas

In praise of fathers: the place of the modern dad

Fatherhood has been transformed from the breadwinner and disciplinarian role of the past to a far more complex framework. Here's how:

Diversity rules

A look at different cultures even within our shores shows there's no one 'right way' to be a dad. Fathers have a strong biological urge to ensure their children's survival, which drives dads to be protective, some to have high expectations and others to promote self-sufficiency. Fathers may differ in how they parent, but ultimately, we all belong to the same valued club. Fathers almost universally want what's best for their child.

Recognising dads

Being a dad is not given the same attention as motherhood. The parenting advice industry is often skewed toward mothers as the direct or primary carers. The lack of recognition can also at times be seen in the mental health field. It's now recognised that men experience heightened anxiety at all stages of fatherhood, however, most simply suffer in silence because 'that's what men do.' The recent advances in mental health promotion still have some way to go when it comes to fathers.

Playtime is crucial

Fathers have long been seen as the kings of play. Science now shows that play is a critical part of the fathering toolkit. Whether it's engaging in rough and tumble play with toddlers, sharing pizza night with primary-school kids or laughing with teens over the latest cat video, dads bond best with their children through play. Oxytocin, the bonding chemical that promotes strong relationships is released most intensely for men when playing with kids. On the other hand, oxytocin spikes for women are prompted by affectionate activities such as stroking, cuddling and talking softly to kids. Activity is at the heart of effective fathering as it's through play that many men do their best fathering work.

Part of team parent

'I wish my partner raised children like me' is a common parent comment. While usually uttered out of sheer frustration this comment misses the point that evolution dislikes duplication. Put simply, if one parent is the disciplinarian the family doesn't need another. Better for the other parent to focus on nurturing, teaching or arranging daily timetables. In busy families it's better to ensure all the parenting bases are covered rather than duplicating roles and leaving out important functions. Working together as one part of team will ensure that most of the needs of a child are met. Alternatively, if you are parenting a child on your own stay connected with other families and reach out for assistance when required.

The school of dad

Traditionally, fathers have been heavily linked with children's learning, but not necessarily of an academic kind. The reinforcement of values, real-world problem-solving and teaching for self-sufficiency have been the usual domain of dads. Recent studies show that dads can also positively impact their children's academic achievement, but in different ways to mothers. While mothers are more likely to be involved in at home learning activities such as hearing children read and supervising homework, fathers are more likely to positively impact their children's attitude to learning. According to American educational researcher William Jeynes, dads focus more (than mothers) on moulding and modelling correct mindsets and behaviours, which provide the foundation upon which children and teens can build their academic journeys. It's this bigger picture focus where fathers can do their best work, particularly changing boys' attitudes to women and giving their daughters the confidence to stand up and be heard.

Dads and kids' development

If a father wants to positively influence children and teenagers, it's important to ensure that their relationship is warm and supportive. While this may be at odds with men's natural tendency to push children's developmental boundaries, fathers should lean on their well defined ability to relate to their kids through play. As Australian educational leader Dr. Tim Hawkes noted in his book "Ten conversations you should have with your son" dads who engage in banter and fun are better placed to discuss issues of real substance with their children.

Dads and resilience

Fathers who promote children's self-sufficiency are well placed to develop resilience in their children. In fact, a key role for modern fathers is to ensure, as part of team parent, that their children can confront and overcome the hardships, frustrations and difficulties that life throws at them. This is done less by adopting tough, hard-nosed tactics, and instead allowing kids to take physical and emotional risks in the knowledge that they can return to a warm and secure base.

Dad is a social role

With children growing up in step, adaptive, single parent and same sex families fatherhood has become less a biological and more a social role. As society changes and assisted parenting techniques continue to advance, whoever answers to father takes on importance in a child's life. This is not denying the rights of a biological father, but rather acknowledges that for many children the person who shows up whether stepfather, relative or family friend, or even a single parent doing both roles, is the social father for a child.

In closing

As society changes the role of fathers is also shifting as well. While the place of a father in a child's life has always been important, there's never been a greater need for fathers to be supported in their role and to widen our view of what it is to be a dad.

Office Bulletin Board Display - 2B

Have you seen the Delightful, Dependable, Devoted and Daring DADS from 2B?

Check out the amazing drawings and descriptions of what makes the dads in 2B so special.

Our new office display - Mary Ward

Mary Ward was the founder of the Loreto Sisters Order of the Institute of the Blessed Virgin Mary.

The Loreto Sisters are the foundation order of Sacred Heart Primary School Thornlie.

The portrait of Mary Ward was painted and donated to the school by the very talented Mrs Lindy Munnings, our Finance Officer. Lindy painted this portrait as part of her Faith, Story, Witness Professional Development. Thank you Lindy for this lovely addition to our school office.

Mary Ward (1585 –1645)

Founder of the Loreto Sisters Order of the Institute of the Blessed Virgin Mary.

Foundation Order of Sacred Heart Primary School Thornlie.

Mary Ward, an English woman, was born in Yorkshire in 1585.

In 1609, Mary Ward founded one of the first groups of active religious women in the Church, the Institute of the Blessed Virgin Mary, known in Ireland and throughout the world as Loreto Sisters.

Inspired by the deep faith of her family, Mary felt called to follow Christ in religious life. She joined a Poor Clare Community in St. Omer in Flanders, now northern France. It became apparent that God had a different plan! Mary wanted to follow Christ in a 'new way', free from religious enclosure and ready to step out to new possibilities.

At first Mary struggled to find the form of religious life which suited her dream, where the members would be free from enclosure and ready to undertake whatever was needed to support the faith and spread the Gospel.

Mary returned to London and worked tirelessly, caring for the sick, visiting prisoners, offering catechesis and supporting those struggling with their faith. A number of women joined her, ready to embark on a new adventure, a quest to follow Christ and spread the message of the gospel. Towards the end of 1609, these six companions, Mary Ward, Mary Poyntz, Jane Browne, Catherine Smith, Suzanna Rookwood and Winefrid Wigmore left London for St. Omer and opened a school mainly for English emigrants.

Mary Ward stands as a beacon of hope for our world today. A woman who loved the church yet was not afraid to speak her truth in the name of God. Her resolute and faith filled spirit shines through all the difficulties of her life. She lived with a true inner freedom. Even when challenged by the church she loved, she never wavered from her vision. Knowing the great gift of God's love in her life, she assured her followers that their 'greatness and strength consists in this, that [they] have free and open access to God'. Today, we as Loreto Sisters endeavour to follow her dream of serving Christ as courageously as she did.

Mary returned to her native Yorkshire where she died there in 1645.

Mary's Philosophy was : "Women in time to come, will do much".

Mary Ward's portrait was painted and donated to the school by Mrs Lindy Munnings

Great Book Swap

To help us celebrate Indigenous Literacy Day in September, we will be hosting a Great Book Swap! The Great Book Swap is a fantastic way to celebrate reading locally, and raise much-needed funds for remote communities. The idea is to swap a favourite book in exchange for a gold coin donation. Our book swap challenge will be held in week 10 of this term during the student's usual library time. This is when children can bring in a gold coin and swap it for a book. Book donations can be brought in before this time and given to classroom teachers. A great chance to have a clean-up! Checkout the link to access the Sacred Heart Great Book swap page.
