

Sacred Heart School Thornlie

From the Heart - 14 October 2022

Principal's Message

Dear Parents

Welcome back to the new term and the last for the year. I hope you managed to have some quality family time together and that your children are well rested for the busy term ahead. We are now in summer uniform and the children will have until the end of week two to have made the transition to the summer uniform.

A final Term Planner will go home with this newsletter. Please diarise any important dates as I'm sure the weeks will fly by heading towards Christmas. Please note the Graduation Mass on Wednesday 7 December at 6pm will be compulsory for Year 6 students and Year 5 students. 2022 student leaders will be announced at this Mass and badges will be presented. Choir students will likely be required to attend as well.

We recently conducted interviews for teaching staff and we welcome Fleur Coy to the Sacred Heart family for 2023. Fleur is a highly experienced teacher who is currently at St Jerome's Primary School. She will be teaching in our Inclusion Support Centre.

All staffing placements for 2023 will be announced at our ACM later this term.

Around this time each year decisions are made regarding student class placements for the following year. Factors which are taken into account when balancing classes include academic ability, gender, social and emotional needs and religious affiliation. In addition, children with behavioural and/or special learning needs are also accommodated.

Parental requests become an additional factor and I would like to make clear our policy on this issue. Letters to, or lobbying of, class teachers will not be considered. Because of the many other factors involved in balancing classes, parental requests can only be met in exceptional circumstances.

If you believe that such circumstances apply to your child, a request must be made in writing to the Principal by Friday 28 October. No requests can be met after this date. When writing your request, please indicate the reason for the request. This is your opportunity to explain in writing your exceptional circumstance. I will not be conducting interviews with parents regarding class placement, nor will I be replying to any letters of request. If I feel more information is required I will contact you to discuss the matter further. Please note that a request for a particular teacher is not deemed exceptional unless there are exceptional circumstances surrounding the request.

Finalised class lists will be posted on classroom windows after transition on Wednesday 7 December. Teachers and Leadership put a great deal of preparation and thought into the new class lists and I ask you to trust that the environment your child is going to next year is one in which they will thrive.

This term we are focusing closely on our core school value of Resilience. Please discuss this with your children at home when opportunities arise.

Our school ACM is coming up this term and now is the time that we call for nominations for the School Advisory Council (SAC) for 2023. This group is a great way to become involved and support your school. Attached is a nomination form. If you are interested please complete and return to the school by Tuesday 1 November. Our ACM will take place on Wednesday 23 November at 6pm.

Lastly, I would like to thank our wonderful P&F for organising the upcoming Disco. It had to be rescheduled at the last minute and we look forward to the event next week.

This week's Parenting Ideas article is about friendship issues and how as a parent you can help your child navigate these difficulties. It also has an invitation to a free webinar on the topic.

Tricky Friendship Days

Relatively small issues, like not being invited to a party, can arouse big, intense feelings in our kids. Because belonging is at stake, friendship challenges will always feel like a life-threatening experience – so be assured that most parents find themselves dealing with powerful tears and shattering disappointments after tricky friendship days.

It is easy for both parents and teachers to fall into the trap of trying to “dial down the drama” when our kids feel overwhelmed. However, minimising or dismissing strong feelings will only tend to ramp them up, because our tween’s brains seek to be heard and understood in the process of regulating. I’d also like to suggest that it denies our children the opportunity to master these big feelings. Our kids need to feel to practise the emotional regulation strategies they need to navigate life well.

I want to share three practical strategies that parents can do to support their tweens during these moments. Friendship challenges are an incredibly rich platform to help kids learn emotional regulation strategies, as well as social skills, and we want to capitalise on both as we coach them forward.

Strategy 1: Let's not fight the intensity

The more I learn about emotions the more I am in awe of our body’s way of coming up with solutions to discomfort, anguish and pain we experience. It doesn’t make any sense to judge that process but rather appreciate it. That’s why we want tweens to know there are no bad or good emotions. There are only healthy emotions, and each one of them is an acceptable and necessary part of being human. Ideally, we want tweens to feel safe to feel, without shame or guilt. This means accepting emotions within our home, in the same way we accept anything else about ourselves (or our experiences) that we cannot change - our age, our height, freckles or ears.

Strategy 2: Ask questions that empower

Although it’s tempting (and much quicker) to offer children prescription answers to friendship problems, it won’t help them in the long term. The problem with childhood conflict always being followed by adult intervention, is that kids can get into the habit of projecting their wishful thinking onto someone else who they perceive as being more powerful than they are.

If our children focus their energy on recruiting support rather than problem-solving, they miss vital learning opportunities. We are best to ask questions that express a sense of curiosity and empower them to take ownership.

Strategy 3: Find a positive expression

Whereas there are times that we suppress our painful emotions for our own survival, emotions are far better off moving through our kids rather than festering inside them.

One of my dearly loved local psychotherapists wisely tells me that children who have imaginations become their own play therapists. Play is a distraction that pulls kids out of their heads and into their bodies. Any type of play including immersing themselves in craft, participating in drama, dance, or sport, or building forts, slides and adventure courses are all helpful..

In closing

Home really is the hero in kids' lives. It is the emotional shield from all that hurts us, bothers us, and tires us. It's a place where love is tangible, and we are cared for in ways that make it easier for us to move back into the world with a soft heart. It's the Utopia that we all yearn for and strive towards. When they feel disappointed, lost, afraid or disoriented it will be the predictability of home that continues to welcome them with open arms and wise words. As you implement these strategies, know you are offering your tween the home they deserve.
